Highlights

Over the past few years we have increased parent trust and involvement within the school. A strong partnership between Carmanagay and Barons, the feeder school, allows for a large School Council turnout where parents have the ability to share and communicate their vision for the students. The percentage of parents agreeing that students are engaged in their learning has consistently been high. This suggests a positive perception of student engagement among parents. We have incorporated CRREW character assemblies/spirit activities that are whole school based. We are encouraging more student-led activities in the school and in the community. Using our LGM facilitator to navigate language barriers, using translation apps for communication and providing information in print as well as digital is still important to our community. As a school we have added more in school and out of school opportunities; that broaden the world view of our students for careers and wellness.

Challenges to Address

Finding alternative and creative pathways for graduation continues to be an area for growth. As a staff we are focusing our efforts this year to partner with other LGM schools to understand their systems for fast tracking graduation and alternate pathways for graduation. The staff is working on stronger communication and support for our grade nine students that are “at risk” of leaving school and finding ways to keep them in school for high school completion or a diploma. There seems to be a decline in student agreement on engagement in comparison to parents and staff. We will continue to offer Choices classes twice a week that allows students to explore more of their own interests. We will continue to work and liaison with a variety of outside agencies to support our students & families. We are excited to look for ways to bring our school community together and provide learning opportunities and showcase LGM former students that have explored non-traditional careers so students see themselves within the larger community.

Evaluations:

The school has historically demonstrated strengths in overall student engagement, subject understanding, and citizenship measures. Carmangay staff will continue to strive to find ways for excellence in learning and engagement. We are continually looking for ways to engage students in options and curriculum that is innovative and gives them the best learning environment. The staff will continue to explore ways students can find success in their academic journey. The focus is on a modernized foods lab, two CTS trailers and earlier intervention of work experience opportunities.

Evaluations:

There is a high percentage of agreement that students follow the rules, help each other, and respect each other. Encouragement for community involvement and trying their best also receives high agreement percentages. However, opinions had decreased last year and as a staff we are hoping by bringing in Character Education assemblies and Spirit Fridays the sense of community will build up again. We want to develop our student leadership and mentorship and build a greater sense of community belonging with the entire school community.

Evaluations:

We will continue to work with parents in finding ways to engage them in our School community. Our large School Council attendance is good evidence that our parents want to be involved. We held in coordination with SAKA a LGM information night with Barons and will be offering a second one in the Spring. These events help schools and communities work together for our students' success. The monthly newsletters and the start up of "Carmangay Chat" with the principal on Fridays before assemblies is an informal time for parents to talk and get more involved.

Evaluations:

We are very proud not only that we continue to have students writing diploma exams, but high numbers of students are achieving acceptable and excellence. Our students are English as an Additional Language (EAL) so the challenge in these exams is there are large reading components so ensuring the students have the support to be successful on these exams is important. Our PAT exams again are heavily weighted in reading components and it is a challenge for young EAL middle school students to have a growth mindset to take these exams and not let it define who they are as a student in such formative years of Junior High. It is within conversations with our teachers and knowing our students we can grow in directing our students in the pathway for success through K & E assessments and programming.

Evaluations:

We believe that all students at Carmangay have the right to feel safe, cared for and in our building. Providing safe spaces, and working with staff to embrace and celebrate diversity is an area for growth. We are hoping to create collaborative, functional spaces for learning and regulation with soft furnishing in the Learning Commons, hallways and to modernize our food lab and complete our CTS trailer sites.. Building strong relationships with the adults in our building helps students feel they have someone or a place to go to when they need to talk or simply have a space for a break. Through conversation, student surveys and feedback we will continue to grow and work to find ways for parents and students to feel they have access to the support they need.

Notes:

At Carmangay we pride ourselves on the “CRREW” philosophy and the emphasis we are placing on Character Education. We are confident we can meet our learners and families where they are and create a learning environment that blends faith, family and education. We know the definition of success is different for all our students and we want to give them an opportunity to determine their pathway with all the tools and support needed. Our students value the time they spend here in our community of learners and see the relevance of it in their lives after school completion.
